MCPc Receives Partner in Excellence Award at the 2010 HP Americas Partner Conference

Award granted for expertise in imaging and printing solutions using HP products

MCPc, Inc., a Cleveland-based technology products and solutions provider, has been recognized with a prestigious HP Partner in Excellence Award for Imaging and Printing Group Business Growth in Hardware. The award was presented at the 2010 HP Americas Partner Conference Partner Recognition Awards ceremony in Las Vegas, Nevada on April 28, 2010.

“There is an art to achieving a balanced imaging and printing environment, and organizations can realize significant savings when they optimize their devices and supplies,” said John Patterson, Managing Director at MCPc. “This recognition assures our customers that MCPc is uniquely equipped to assist them in this endeavor.”

Selected by a panel of executives from the HP Solution Partners Organization, the awards were given to 19 HP partners that exhibited substantial successes in the marketplace. Determining factors included substantial success in the marketplace, outstanding performance in the delivery of HP products and solutions, and/or the execution of philanthropic practices in line with HP’s corporate objectives of global citizenship and social responsibility.

“The winners of HP’s Partner Recognition Awards represent the best our partners have to offer in each business unit and region, whether that’s through sales leadership and marketplace differentiation, or by demonstrating global citizenship in giving back to the community,” said Stephen DiFranco, Vice President and General Manager, HP Solution Partners Organization Americas. “We thank all our partners for their contributions and congratulate our award-winning partners for their ongoing leadership.”
